The Cassiopean Experiment

Published Here in The Hidden Texts of Da Vinci and Nostradamus simply because the knowledge is parallel Even though these details were published decades ago, many of the predictions refer to the days we live in now.

Q: (L) Now, wait a minute here! That's like sending us out to translate a book in Latin without even giving us a Latin dictionary.

A: No it is not. We asked you to consider a reexamination.

Q: (L) You have told us that there is a cluster of comets connected in some interactive way with our solar system, and that this cluster of comets comes into the plane of the ecliptic every 3,600 years. Is this correct?

A: Yes. But, this time it is riding realm border wave to 4th level, where all realities are different. refer pdf forum LANE OF NIBIRU ~ PLAINER PASSOVER

Q: (L) Okay, so the cluster of comets is riding the realm border wave. Does this mean that when it comes into the solar system, that its effect on the solar system, or the planets within the solar system, (J) or us (L) may or may not be mitigated [made less severe] by the fact of this transition? Is this a mitigating factor?

A: Will be mitigated.

Q: (L) Does this mean that all of this running around and hopping and jumping to go here and go there and do this and do that is ...

A: That is strictly 3rd-level thinking.

Q: (L) Now, if that is third level thinking, and if a lot of these things are symbolic, I am assuming they are symbolic of movement or changes in energy.

A: Will be mitigated.

Q: (L) Does this mean that all of this running around and hopping and jumping to go here and go there and do this and do that is ...

A: That is strictly 3rd-level thinking.

Q: (L) Now, if that is third level thinking, and if a lot of these things are symbolic, I am assuming they are symbolic of movement or changes in energy.

A: Yes.

Q: (L) And, if these changes in energy occur, does this mean that the population of the planet are, perhaps – in groups or special masses of groups – are they defined as the energies that are changing in these descriptions of events and happenings of great cataclysm? Is it like a cataclysm of the soul on an individual and or collective basis?

A: Close.

Q: (L) When the energy changes to fourth density, and you have already told us that people who are moving to fourth density when the transition occurs, that they will move into fourth density, go through some kind of rejuvenation process, grow new teeth, or whatever, what happens to those people who are not moving to fourth density, and who are totally unaware of it? Are they taken along on the Wave by, in other words, piggybacked by, the ones who are aware and already changing in frequency, or are piggybacked by, the ones who are aware and already changing in frequency, or are they going to be somewhere else doing something else?

A: Step by step.

Q: (T) In other words, we are looking at the fact that what's coming this time is a Wave that's going to allow the human race to move to fourth density?

A: And the planet and your entire sector of space-time.

The Wave by "LaPurr"

Q: (T) Is that what this whole plan is about, then, if I may be so bold as to include all of us here in this? We could be beings who have come here into human form, to anchor the frequency. Is this what we are anchoring it for, for this Wave; so that when it comes, enough of us will be ready, the frequency will be set, so that the change in the planet can take place as it has been planned?

A: Yes.

Q: (T) Okay, when the people are talking about the Earth Changes, when they talk in literal terms about the survivors, and those who are not going to survive, and the destruction and so forth and so on, in third, fourth, and fifth-level reality, we are not talking about the destruction of the planet on fourth-level physical terms, or the loss of ninety per cent of the population on the fourth level because they died, but because they are going to move to fourth level?

A: Whoa! You are getting "warm".

Q: (T) Okay. So, we are anchoring this. So, when they talk about ninety per cent of the population not surviving, it is not that they are going to die, but that they are going to transform. We are going to go up a level. This is what the whole light thing is all about?

A: Or another possibility is that the physical cataclysms will occur only for those "left behind" on the remaining 3rd-level-density Earth.

So, not only do we have to take into account the source of the prediction (whether it be delusion, genuine 'psychic' ability, or communication with a 'higher' intelligence) and the fact that prediction may be accurate at the time but not after possible future events affecting its outcome, we also have to consider that such things are often presented in symbolic language. And there may be something to the whole 'Rapture' concept after all, but as is usually the case, the truth probably bears little resemblance to the religious gloss. And, like any avid reader of science fiction knows, one author's personal 'fantasy' may turn out to be strikingly close to reality, either now or in the future. Coincidence, or something else entirely?

With all that in mind, let's take a look at a series of predictions given at one of the earliest sessions, 16 July 1994, on the day that Comet Shoemaker-Levy 9's fragments collided with Jupiter in a spectacular display that stunned scientists and observers the world over.

according to The Nostradamus Texts, Cassiopeians use Celtic Tree Zodiac dating

First of all, there is a possible time reference: "Sun is in Libra." On the surface, this could be seen to mean that these events are predicted to occur when the Sun is visible on the backdrop of the constellation of Libra, which is 31 October to 22 November (or 24 September to October 23 in astrological terms). Since this is near the end of hurricane season, perhaps this is a prediction of a time of intense cyclonic storms? However, keeping in mind the discussion of symbolism above, it could also relate to the Sun being 'on the scales' or in 'balance', perhaps with the brown dwarf that is hypothesized to be our Sun's companion (stay tuned for that installment). On 11 July 1998, the Cs said:

Refer: THE TRIPLE METHOD ↔ CELTIC TREE ZODIACS ↔ MATTER OF NAMING DATES

Q: (A) I want to continue questions from the previous session. First, about this companion star: where is it now, which part of the zodiac?

A: Libra Constellation.

Part of the town of Joplin, Missouri was obliterated this year in the most devastating tornado in US history

So this series of predictions seems to be tied to the Sun's hypothesized companion star and they were possibly given as indicators of its approach. Interestingly, 2011 saw several of these events come to pass. While Texas saw some minor tornado activity on 24 October 2010, as did Florida on 31 March 2011, the Southern U.S. (including Florida, Texas and Alabama, in addition to several other states) was pummeled in late April 2011 in what was called "one of the largest tornado outbreaks in history": a series of over 300 tornadoes, 15 of which were classified as EF4 or EF5 on the Enhanced Fujita Scale, killing over 300 people (EF5 being the highest or the scale). Alabama was hit hardest, with 254 fatalities. This was followed the month after with a series of 158 tornadoes afflicting the Midwestern U.S. and resulting in almost the same number of fatalities. The major, multi-vortex EF5 tornado, which leveled the town of Joplin, Missouri, stood out as one of the major U.S. natural disasters of recent years. All in all, after only five months, 2011 was deemed the deadliest year for tornadoes in recorded history.

Then, in late May/June, Arizona burned when the Wallow Fire consumed over 500,000 acres in Eastern Arizona, making it the largest forest fire in Arizona's history. By the time the fire made the record books, over 10,000 people had been

Then, in late May/June, Arizona burned when the Wallow Fire consumed over 500,000 acres in Eastern Arizona, making it the largest forest fire in Arizona's history. By the time the fire made the record books, over 10,000 people had been displaced and the fire was only six percent contained, with full containment "nowhere in sight." (A possible meteor sighting occurred on 31 May, perhaps explaining how this gigantic blaze erupted, although officials suspect a campfire was to blame.) And while the fires were just getting started, Missouri shook with a 4.2 magnitude earthquake on 7 June.

Big One in Japan

And of course, Japan 'buckled' on 11 March 2011 when a magnitude 9.0 earthquake (upgraded from an original estimate of 8.9) killed just under 16,000 people. It was one of the five largest earthquakes in seismic record-keeping history, causing 10-metre-high tsunami waves and resulting in the total meltdown of three nuclear reactors at Fukushima. This quake seems to have been predicted by the Cs in another session as well, and in more detail. Here's what the Cs had to say on 5 October 1994:

Q: (L) We would also like to have more information on Earth Changes. Is the Japanese earthquake that just happened as you predicted last week, the last of the Japanese problem? {An entire session had been lost due to tape malfunction. It consisted in part of a prediction of an almost immediate Japanese earthquake, which did occur exactly

Is the Japanese earthquake that just happened as you predicted last week, the last of the Japanese problem? {An entire session had been lost due to tape malfunction. It consisted in part of a prediction of an almost immediate Japanese earthquake, which did occur exactly as predicted }

A: No.

Q: (L) Can you give us more on that?

A: There will be activity about 8.9: 67 miles off Osaka coast; 9.7: central Tokyo.

Q: (L) Are all of these going to happen within this year?

A: No. Within 16 years.

The Japanese quake occurred 16 years and 5 months after this prediction, although its location was not 67 miles off the coast of Osaka. However, in 1994, and up until the quake in 2011, a magnitude of 8.9 or 9.0 was unprecedented for Japan. The Cs expanded on their predictions for Japan on 21 January 1995:

Q: (T) So this [Japanese earthquake on 17 January 1995] was not the quake that you predicted – the 8.9 – this was a 7.2, but it was miles distance from Osaka almost right on the money, but this was not the quake that you predicted? (J) There's going

A: Yes 14 more this sequence. {...}

Q: (T) This is one in a sequence of earthquakes that are going to culminate in the 8.9?

A whole swathe of Japan was wiped off the map this year too.

A: 9 pt 6.

Q: (T) In Osaka, near Osaka?

A: Tokyo.

Q: Okay, that's the one you talked about, then a 9.6, that's going to be the culmination of the quakes in this [sequence]. This is only the third or fourth in a sequential series and the 8.9 that's going to hit them hasn't happened yet.

A: 7th.

Q: (T) This is the seventh earthquake?

A: Yes.

Q: (T) 7.2 was the seventh earthquake, there's going to be fourteen of them, is that what you said before?

A: Yes.

Q: (J) So there's seven more coming? (T) So the fourteenth one will be the big one, in Tokyo?

A: 13th.

Q: (T) Okay, the thirteenth is going to be the 9.6 and I think the other prediction was 9.8, they're close. That'll be the thirteenth. What will be the 8.9, which one of those will

A: Within next 4 [in the sequence?].

Q: (T) What will the fourteenth be?

A: Small.

If we only consider the quakes that caused a significant number of deaths (>1) since that time, and if the quake referred to above was the seventh in a series of fourteen, then there is a perfect match with the prediction so far: 7) 17 January 1995 (6.8, 6,434 deaths), 8) 23 October 2004 (6.9, 40 deaths), 9) 16 July 2007 (6.6, 11 deaths), 10) 14 June 2008 (6.9, 12 deaths), 11) 11 March 2011 (9.0, 15,826 deaths), 12) ? , 13) predicted 9.6 in central Tokyo, 14) ? (small). Additionally, the physical stress of the actual earthquake was not the only thing to 'buckle' Japan. The Fukushima meltdowns and subsequent fallout continue to threaten the health of the region's inhabitants, and residents are confused and furious.

Another possible hit occurred in April 2011 when an 8.2-lb gold nugget was discovered in California, prompting some to predict a new Gold Rush in the region.

On 3 December 1994, the Cs had included this nugget in a string of predictions and markers of future events:

“ A: Gold is discovered in California after one of the quakes.

Of course, this doesn't necessarily need to refer to a California quake, and the fact that it was discovered in the aftermath of the Japanese quake is suggestive. But speaking of California, possibly in reference to "California crumbles" in the 1994 session, the Cs also had this to say in the 21 January 1995 session about a possible catastrophic quake in California:

“ Q: (T) OK, so when this all happens is there going to be an effect on California of all of this, on the West Coast of this country?

A: Yes.

Q: (T) So look at it symbolically. (D) Okay. (J) Where are the other quakes going to be?

A: Hundreds [in addition to those in California].

Given the Cs' use of symbolic language as well as their comments on a 'mass exodus', perhaps the 'California crumbles' remark is referring to the general state of California's economy. As the Business Insider reported in October 2010, "the economy of the state [of California] is in shambles." Unemployment had risen from around 5% in 2006 and 2007 to over 12%. Poverty rates are the highest in over a decade, the health care system is about to collapse, and five out of six businesses are out of business. While there are fewer Californians leaving the state than in past recessions (500,000 between 2004 and 2010 compared to 1,500,000 between 1991 and 1998), California's domestic immigration is still in the negative. And the record number of businesses relocating out-of-state in 2010, which has only accelerated in 2011, has been called an 'exodus' in the media, with headlines like 'CA Business Exodus Accelerates' and 'The California Exodus'. 204 companies left in 2010, making for an average of 3.9 per week. By 16 June 2011, that average was already at 5.4 per week.

Given the timing of the events in question, perhaps this little news item is symbolic in and of itself?

“ It is the most scenic highway in America, but a big chunk of California's Highway 1 has fallen into the sea after a landslide. Stunned drivers watched as a forty-foot section tumbled into the Pacific below after several days of rain. The landslide, at 5pm on Wednesday [16 March 2011], happened 12 miles from Carmel. A two-mile stretch is now closed for repairs which are expected to take several days.

2005*), the times of peak uploads on YouTube. But overall, this latest solar cycle apparently hasn't been that spectacular. So what's up? Let's take a look at some more comments from the Cs and see if we can come up with possible explanations for what exactly is changing in our planetary and solar system environment. It's a bit tangled, so I'm going to take it one thread at a time and then try to tie it all together at the end.

Sol's Little Brother

On 17 January 1997, the Cs offered up this for discussion:

“ A: ... What do you suppose happens when the mantle stops, or slows, and the crust does not?

Q: (Laura) Frank had a dream about this the other night, too. (Terry) About the mantle slowing? Okay, if the mantle slows and the crust doesn't ... (Laura) It's like walking around the room, carrying a bowl of soup, and then stopping ... (Terry) It sloshes over because the crust keeps moving ... water in all of the oceans is going to slosh ...

A: No sloshing.

Q: (Laura) Okay, what happens when the ... is it that there will be lots of earthquakes?

A: Maybe, but what is the bigger picture?

Q: (Laura) The bigger picture is that the earth changes its orbital position, velocity ...

Q: (Laura) Okay, what happens when the ... is it that there will be lots of earthquakes?

A: Maybe, but what is the bigger picture?

Q: (Laura) The bigger picture is that the earth changes its orbital position, velocity ... (Terry) No. The bigger picture is that life on earth gets pretty well wiped out.

A: No.

Q: (Laura) It exchanges energy potentials with other bodies?

A: No.

Q: (Jan) Gravity changes ...

A: Warmer ...

Q: (L) You mentioned that if the earth's rotation were to slow, even a minute bit, that everything "opens up" gravitationally speaking. But, this seems to be connected to solar activity, and not so much the speed of the earth.

A: The solar and earth activities are interconnected.

Let's start with gravity. As far as most scientists are concerned, it is a constant. It never changes. Let's assume that's the case for now. How might gravity 'change' on earth? Well, gravity is actually stronger in some places than others. They're called 'gravity anomalies' and they depend on the total mass underneath your feet, and that is affected by the thickness (elevation) and mass density of the material.

Constant, gravity? A gravity anomaly map from NGU, the Norwegian Society for Geology

One factor that can cause such a 'change' in gravity actually has to do with the mantle – the viscous, rocky layer between earth's core and crust. Hotter mantle is less dense, so elevated heat flow results in lower gravity. (Incidentally, this could explain the lower gravity detected in Canada.) It's commonly believed that heat from the core causes the mantle to convect in plumes, like a pot of water on the stove. The heated mantle rises from the core to the crust, which it interacts with, resulting in such dramatic changes as tectonic plate movement, mid-plate volcanism, and crustal reorganization as rising magma cools to become new crust. It's also commonly believed that mantle plumes called 'hotspots' are responsible for regions of volcanically active oceanic ridges. But strong plumes aren't always located where they 'should be', leading the authors of one relatively recent paper on the subject to write: "Such observations tend to preclude the use of a single hotspot/ridge interaction model and stress the need for additional observations in various plume/ridge configurations."

Caltex scientist Don L. Anderson suggests that this 'bottom-up' picture, where the mantle is active and the plates passive, may not be the right way to look at it. It ignores the influence of the pressure from the plates above and the extreme viscosity of mantle near the core-mantle boundary (CMB), making such dramatic plumes unlikely to occur. Anderson presents a model where the upper thermal boundary layer near the crust takes on the active role. The cold surface drives the passive convection of the mantle. Even then, Anderson writes:

Ever noticed how none of the popular "channellers" ever mention any of the five free energy methods? Exception being Laura Knight Jadczyk

Hot regions of the lower mantle will heat the upper mantle and may control, to some extent, the locations of supercontinents and long-lived subduction zones. Even if the mantle is irreversibly chemically stratified into two or more layers, the deep layers will have an effect on geophysical observables. Regions of high elevation, tensile stress and volcanism will tend to be above low-density regions of the deep mantle unless counteracted by gravitational forces in the plates themselves and at plate boundaries.

So, as is usually the case when you start digging into any accepted science dogma, I'm finding that things aren't as cut and dried as they're presented in the textbooks. Core-mantle effects seem to have some influence on activities and structure of the crust, but the opposite is just as likely. It goes both ways. But even if we don't know for sure if the tail wags the dog or vice versa, some possibilities still start to take shape. The processes of mantle convection, plate tectonics, volcanism (as we've seen in part one of this series, undersea volcanoes may have something to do with 'global warming' and climate change in general), and crust formation, among others, are all tied together. Depending on the direction of causation, some change in the core (or crust) would spark a chain reaction of feedbacks, and gravity effects will be a part of it. Slower, cooler mantle will have more gravity, while hotter, less dense regions will have less. As to the possible effects of any such 'disturbance in the force', we'll see some possibilities further on.

The corona produced by a total solar eclipse. Maybe the ancients were wary of such events for good reason?

However, things might not be that simple (ha!) when it comes to gravity changes. In their book, Who Built the Moon?, Christopher Knight and Alan Butler share some remarkable findings relating to gravity. For example, in the 1950s, French engineer Maurice Allais discovered something amazing, completely by chance. He was investigating a possible link between gravity and magnetism, using a Foucault pendulum. One day there happened to be a solar eclipse, and the pendulum started rotating backwards (!). The results were verified by Allais, as well as other scientists with no connection to him, in the years after. By current science dogma, this is impossible, therefore it mustn't have happened. But perhaps connected, in 1995, Indian scientists D. C. Mishra and M. B. S. Rao observed a small and sudden drop in the strength of gravity during a solar eclipse using a gravimeter. Again, other scientists have apparently detected similar effects (Knight & Butler 2007, 37 – 39). So, perhaps the Cs were being quite literal. But what could the cause of these changes be?

I find it fascinating that the gravity changes observed by Allais, Mishra, Rao, et al., occurred during solar eclipses. As we know from James McCanney's work, during new moon, the moon temporarily forms an electrical alignment between the earth, moon, and sun. The moon blocks the electrical connection between the sun and earth, causing us to get hit by a strong burst of solar energy when it passes out of alignment and triggering extreme weather effects. A total solar eclipse will most likely have the most extreme effects. It's also interesting that Allais was studying a link between gravity and magnetism. Here's what the Cs said on 18 July 1998:

Q: (L) Now, one question that we were discussing earlier is: how can the close approach of the companion star cause an increase in the Sun's gravity when there is no reason why it should change anything, since gravity is a function of mass?

A: But do you really know all there is to know about gravity?

Q: (A) No, we don't know. But, does this mean that this will be an effect that does not follow from the theory of gravity that we know already?

A: Gravity is the life force that binds all realities as one.

Q: (L) What are the mechanics of the increase in the Sun's gravity? What is going to cause this?

A: In order to understand this, you would need a reworking of the theorem.

Q: (L) Can you help us in this reworking of the theorem?

A: Waves. [...]

Q: (A) What wave, a gravitational wave, or an electromagnetic wave, or some other wave? What wave?

A: Arkadiusz, how do these intersect?

Q: (A) Gravity and electromagnetic?

A: Yes. And others.

Q: (A) How they are described within a theory, or how they intersect in space when they come together?

A: Both.

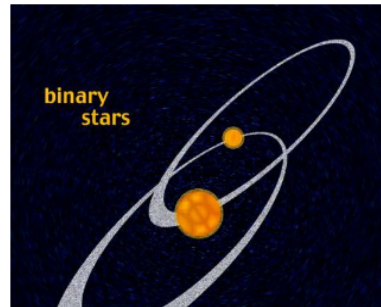

Q: (A) Okay, why does this increase in the Sun's gravity have anything to do with electromagnetism? We were told that the Brown star will not radiate any radiation, so, in particular, no electromagnetic radiation. So, where does electromagnetism come in? I do not understand...

A: Gravitational pull incites electromagnetic impulse

A: Gravitational pull incites electromagnetic impulse

While it may or may not be related to the Cs' linking of electromagnetics and gravity, in McCanney's model, the gravitational pull of the sun on objects entering the solar system (comets) results in them cutting through regions of electric charge, in turn causing them to 'ignite' and discharge the solar capacitor. This relates to the remark from the Cs above that the sun and earth activities are interconnected: changes in the sun's output affects the earth (and the whole solar system), and some specific changes in celestial bodies of the solar system affect the capacitor and thus the sun (which is why discharging comets often prompt CMEs, to give just one example).

But this excerpt brings us to another point: the possibility that our sun has a companion.

In fact, binary star systems are quite common, if not the rule in our galaxy. Physicist Peter Eggleton quotes Petrie's research from 1960 that 52% of star systems showed evidence of multiplicity (the real number theoretically being much larger, due to limits to measurement accuracy). He also writes, "After considering unseen companions [e.g. brown dwarfs], Poveda et al. (1982) for the range of orbits they were able to study in all five clusters (02-020 A0), and they acknowledge that they can't discount an even higher initial number, if more binaries exist below the observed range.

So, if McCanney, Poveda, and Eggleton are right about the incidence of binary systems, Sol should probably have one (if it wasn't lost at some point in the past). If it's still there, since it's not visible, chances are it would be a brown dwarf. This is what the Cs suggested on 3 August 1996 and 4 July 1998. (See here for the full sessions.)

But keep in mind that there are dissenting views. For example, Deepak Raghavan et al. analyzed a sample of 454 "solar-type" stars within 25 parsecs of the Sun and found that the majority (about 54%) were single-star systems. They found that the bigger the mass of the star, the more likely it is to have a companion. Clark et al. summed up the findings by writing that stars up to 40 times the mass of the Sun exist in binaries about 75% of the time, down to 20% for stars less than 0.1 the mass of the sun (that includes brown dwarfs).

In the region closest to our sun, the only systematic, observational research on the subject seems to have been done by RECONS (Research Consortium on Nearby Stars). Of the star systems within 10 parsecs of our own, 29% have 2 or more observed stars. As the RECONS people point out, this number may seem low, because 73% of the stars identified are red dwarfs (less than half the mass of the sun and listed as "M" types in their chart). Red dwarfs are less likely to have companions than larger stars, so the 29% figure probably isn't representative for all star types in our cosmic neighbourhood, especially if we take into account the difficult-to-detect brown dwarfs.

Moving on, I already included this next excerpt from 22 February 1997 in part two of this series, where I mentioned the idea that changes in cloud formation can cause a change in angular momentum of the earth, thus a change in its rate of rotation. (See here for a short discussion of angular momentum.) On this point, we recently carried an article reporting that average cloud height, which is positively correlated with global temperature, has been dropping for approximately the last decade, something SOTT has been pointing out for a while now – high-altitude phenomena like jet contrails are appearing lower and lower, giving way to widespread belief in ‘chemtrails’. In other words, the atmosphere (upper and now lower) appears to be cooling. (See this as well, which brings more confirmation to something else I wrote in part two: global warming stopped in 1997.)

ice ages is a century old. But a Harvard earth sciences Professor Peter Huybers has finally proved it, using computer models to test competing ideas – and finding that earth's tilting axis is the only one that works." In another article, Huybers says, "Another important aspect to consider is that the orbital configuration we now have is almost exactly where it was 20,000 years ago, during the Last Glacial Maximum, but this time we're near a glacial minimum." Maybe not? The next ice age is coming sooner rather than later, according to Habibullo Abdussamatov, head of the space research laboratory at Saint Petersburg-based Pulkovo Observatory.

There may be a sun-earth core connection, too. As NASA reported last year, an "external (e.g. solar) process" may somehow affect the core and outer core, explaining a correlation between long-term surface temperatures and length of day fluctuations. This may mesh with McCanney's theory of earth's magnetic field: that it is not the result of an internal 'dynamo' process, but external electrical interactions with the solar capacitor. According to McCanney, the magnetic field is both permanent (in the solid core, as well as pockets of mantle and crust) and variable (above the surface and including electric currents that flow between earth's inner layers). As I already mentioned above, some mainstream scientists have associated the length of day variations noticed by NASA with torques produced by electrical currents which flow between and connect the core to the mantle, but as the authors of one paper write, "less is known about [these] torques". Perhaps the sun, and the earth's electrical connection with the solar capacitor, is at least partially responsible for these dynamics in the core (perhaps causing its periodic heating and cooling). So if there is a connection with the sun, maybe more would be known if these scientists got up to speed on electric universe theory? And maybe we can add the magnetic field to our list of interrelated factors, along with rotation, axis, gravity, atmosphere, climate, etc.?

So, keeping all that in mind, read the following from 31 October 2001:

And these are the following – the axis of rotation [HK: polar wander] with respect to stars is changing, straightening out for instance; this is one thing; while all the rest goes with the axis, the lithosphere and the magnetic field. Second, the axis stays where it is, maybe it shifts a little bit; the lithosphere stays where it is – maybe it wobbles – but the magnetic field changes: for instance reverses. Third, axis stays, magnetic field stays, but the lithosphere is moving. So that's three ways a pole shift can happen. And of course there are things that come together. The most dramatic one which is seen from outside is when the axis of rotation changes. The next dramatic one is probably when the lithosphere changes. And the third of unknown consequences is when the magnetic pole changes, okay? So, we want to have an understanding what will be the main change. (L) Well I guess we ought to ask an even more basic question: are we looking at a pole shift happening? That's starting at the beginning. (A) Alright. (L) In the next ten years. Is a pole shift possible in the next ten years?

A: Yes.

Q: (L) Is a pole shift of the axis ... (A) Honey, you ask if the pole shift is possible, of course it's possible. But suppose it's almost zero probability? 'Is it possible' is not the

A: Yes.

Q: (L) Is a pole shift of the axis ... (A) Honey, you ask if the pole shift is possible, of course it's possible. But suppose it's almost zero probability? 'Is it possible' is not the right question. 'Is it going to happen?' That's a question. (L) Okay, you ask, carry on.

(A) Are we looking at a pole shift during the next ten or so years with a high degree of probability?

A: Yes. [HK: Note, this session was from just over 10 years ago.]

Q: (A) In this concept of pole shift, what would be the main feature of this pole shift, of all those which we were discussing?

A: New axial orientation, and magnetic reversal.

Q: (L) That's fairly dramatic. (A) Alright, now, change of axis or orientation of axis of rotation: can we say we would straighten up, getting almost perpendicular to the ecliptic? Or the other possibility is that it will fall down being almost parallel to the ecliptic. The third is that we'll flip completely by 180 degrees. We know it's highly unpredictable, but can we have a clue from which one is, so to say, dominate?

A: Correct.

Q: (A) So it will just shift a little bit, but its not going to go to Hawaii? (L) Oh rats! That was my theory! Well, it was a good idea. (A) What about changes in the lithosphere: can we predict a little bit of change in geography, coming from motions in lithosphere and changes in water level?

A: Chaotic features predominate but in general it will be safer inland and in mountainous areas since less folding occurs in such locations.

Q: (A) Now, the major, the change of the orientation of the axis, what would be the main trigger, force, or activity, or what kind of event will trigger this change of the axis?

A: Yes. Twin sun also.

Q: (L) Does this mean that all of the different bodies of the solar system are like parts of some kind of giant machine, and once this electric current flows through them, depending on their positions relative to one another at the time this current flows, that it has some influence on the way the machine runs?

A: Yes, more or less.

most recently, there was this follow-up on the 'opening up' on 6 July 2010:

Q: (L) Is there going to be a gigantic methane eruption in the Gulf of Mexico resulting in a tsunami that wipes out everybody in Florida?

A: No. The methane is a serious contributor to global "warming", however.

Q: (L) Is oil leaking out of the ocean bed floor in the Gulf of Mexico in any other places besides through the well?

A: Yes but that is happening elsewhere as well. All part of the "opening up" phenomenon.

Q: (L) So, you mean that what we've speculated about sinkholes and cracks in the earth ... What is causing this opening up?

A: Misalignment, or rather sliding of layers of crust of earth due to slowing of rotation.

should this happen – volcanic activity cannot be avoided..... for humans – the first necessity that will be gone is electricity followed by a "nuclear winter". The pull of Nibiru will do this.

Q: (L) Okay, what is causing this slowing of rotation?

A: We have mentioned the approach of companion star and its tendency to “ground” the system.

A: Yes. You are already feeling its approach.

Q: (L) Well, that’s one thing that this guy James McCanney said. He said that this last solar cycle – the maximum – was so long, so intense that it was evidence that something really big, had entered the solar capacitor. It was discharging the sun. And, if that’s the case, there’s probably a current flow and that means that it’s possible that at some point the earth and maybe the moon and several other astronomical bodies, will line up along the line of this flow that’s going on between the sun and its companion. And if that’s the case, could that be a little problematical?

A: Oh indeed! Yes, it is happening already. Do you not see the evidence all around the globe?

Q: (L) Well, on that point, McCanney says that when the earth gets into this kind of situation where there’s a discharge thing going on, between the sun and another body and the earth gets involved in it, that the earth itself becomes comet-like during that time and it begins also to attract what he calls pollution events. It starts picking up all kinds of dust and stuff from outer space – and even the water volume on the planet gets increased because of this precipitating, because the planet’s picking stuff up from space. It’s growing from accumulating stuff, from acquiring stuff. And if that’s the case, we could be attracting dust loading in the upper atmosphere-regardless of whether or not we pass through cometary dust clouds. All these things that we’ve been noticing going on in the upper atmosphere – strange clouds, long-lasting contrails, extreme cooling – could be exactly as he described. There could also be atmospheric effects of these electric sheets, because he says that there are different kinds of ways of currents and layers of currents. He’s got like a five-layer model of how the electromagnetic field of the planet goes, and he says that it’s the cause of El Niño, it’s the cause of earthquakes, volcanoes, storms, changing of the Jet Stream, and just a whole host of things: it’s all electrical phenomena. He says that the electricity from the sun creates and drives hurricanes and that it is not the temperature of the water. Because he said that if it had to do with the temperatures of the water, one hurricane comes along, sucks all the heat out – then it would be impossible for another hurricane to form for a period of time. And yet you see very often, hurricane after hurricane. So, is he on to something with this theory?

A: Oh you bet!

So if the companion sun, and any wayward comets it has catapulted into the solar system, are entering and discharging the solar capacitor, this could have a number of effects on earth, including: ...continues next page

Followed up on 12 Dec 2010:

“ Q: (L) Ok, now I’ve got this other book here, Lost Star of Myth and Time – and his theory is about a companion star and the fact that the earth or the solar system is rotating around a common center of gravity, in tandem with this companion star. It is said that it is this orbit that creates the precession of the zodiac. He says that the precession is not a big wobble that the earth goes through, as it proceeds in a fairly direct course through the galaxy, but rather that it is this rotation around this common center of gravity with the companion star that produces the effect of precession. Now, is he on to something with his theory also about the precession of the zodiac?

his theory also about the precession of the zodiac?

A: Absolutely!

Q: (L) OK, he points out some interesting effects in here. First of all, he mentioned recording the speed of the earth’s rotation. They had a fixed telescope with crosshairs and they had a clock that was connected to some kind of super time clock that was extremely accurate, and they were recording exactly how long it took the earth to rotate in respect of Sirius, Sirius being a fixed point. These researchers discovered that during the period of time, when Sirius B (Sirius’s companion, which is a dwarf), eclipsed Sirius A; it actually slowed the rotation of the earth. Now, this is what their measurements showed. Something like 50 arc seconds. The slowing began a week before the eclipse, then after the eclipse the earth actually sped up. By 50 arc seconds. So, there are two weeks of effects on the rotation of the earth, caused by the eclipsing of Sirius A caused by its companion Sirius B as I remember, though I may have missed the exact time period. Now, the conclusion that he drew from this is that we are affected by being gravitationally connected to Sirius somehow. Anyhow, the conclusion that he draws is ... and he also points out that it seems that Sirius is heading in our direction; we are getting closer to Sirius – so, he theorizes that Sirius is our companion star. Is he correct about that?

A: Not Sol’s companion; but look in that direction for clues to your own little brother.

Q: (L) Is it true as he speculates that when the solar system approaches this companion of ours, that it will have a psychic effect?

Perhaps related, a few recent news stories stick out: the sun displayed some interesting cyclonic magnetic activity on February 7-8, a new comet was discovered on February 11, an unexplained ripple in earth's magnetic field occurred on February 14, leading to strange whirlpool auroras in the Arctic Circle, and it was recently discovered that Venus' rotation has slowed by approximately 6.5 minutes in the last 16 years. Perhaps whatever is influencing Venus' rotation is having a similar effect on earth?

Interestingly, GNFE (Global Network for the Forecasting of Earthquakes) President Professor Elchin Khalilov reported that on November 15, 2011, multiple ATROPATENA earthquake forecasting stations simultaneously recorded "a very powerful gravitational impulse" of the type which usually signal impending earthquakes.

“ A detailed analysis of all records of the stations led to the conclusion that this might be possible only if the source of the stress waves was in the Earth's core. According to the scientist, such an impulse could be caused by a powerful energy burst in the Earth's interior, at its core. This process may result in the accelerated movement of lithospheric plates and, consequently, strong earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, tsunamis and other geological cataclysms.

Professor Khalilov was later interviewed about the strange sounds heard over the world. I'll close this article with some food for thought from Dr. Khalilov:

“ We have analyzed records of these sounds and found that most of their spectrum lies within the infrasound range, i.e. is not audible to humans. What people hear is only a small fraction of the actual power of these sounds. They are low-frequency acoustic emissions in the range between 20 and 100 Hz modulated by ultra-low infrasonic waves from 0.1 to 15 Hz. In geophysics, they are called acoustic-gravity waves; they are formed in the upper atmosphere, at the atmosphere-ionosphere boundary in particular. There can be quite a lot of causes why those waves are generated: earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, hurricanes, storms, tsunamis, etc. However, the scale of the observed humming sound in terms of both the area covered and its power far exceeds those that can be generated by the above- covered and its power far exceeds those that can be generated by the above mentioned phenomena.

In that case, what could be causing this humming in the sky?

In our opinion, the source of such powerful and immense manifestation of acoustic-gravity waves must be very large-scale energy processes. These processes include powerful solar flares and huge energy flows generated by them, rushing towards Earth's surface and destabilizing the magnetosphere, ionosphere and upper atmosphere. Thus, the effects of powerful solar flares: the impact of shock waves in the solar wind, streams of corpuscles and bursts of electromagnetic radiation are the main causes of generation of acoustic-gravitation waves following increased solar activity. [...]

But you said that the cause of the "sky hum" can lie within Earth's core as well, what does it mean?

There is one more possible cause of these sounds and it may lie at the Earth's core. The fact is that the acceleration of the drift of the Earth's north magnetic pole which increased more than fivefold between 1998 and 2003 and is at the same level today points to intensification of energy processes in the Earth's core, since it is processes in the inner and outer core that form the Earth's geomagnetic field. Meanwhile, as we have already reported, on November 15, 2011 all ATROPATENA geophysical stations which record three-dimensional variations of the Earth's gravitational field almost simultaneously registered a powerful gravitational impulse. The stations are deployed in Istanbul, Kiev, Baku, Islamabad and Yogyakarta, with the first and last one being separated by a distance of about 10,000 km. Such a phenomenon is only possible if the source of this emanation is at the Earth's core level. That huge energy release from the Earth's core at the end of the last year was some kind of a start signal indicating the transition of the Earth's internal energy into a new active phase.

Intensification of the energy processes in the Earth's core can modulate the geomagnetic field which, through a chain of physical processes at the ionosphere – atmosphere boundary level, generates acoustic-gravity waves the audible range of which has been heard by people in the form of a frightening low-frequency sound in different parts of our planet.

In both cases, even though the causes of acoustic-gravity waves are of a quite understandable geophysical nature, they are indicative of the expected significant increase in solar activity and the geodynamic activity of our planet. There is no doubt that processes in the core rule the internal energy of our planet, therefore, we should expect by the end of 2012 a sharp rise in strong earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, tsunamis and extreme weather events with peak levels in 2013 – 2014.

qualified "FEMALE PARKS" because there is Simon Parkes UK, Anton Parcs Fr., and Jim Sparks USA. Sadly it came to my attention that the latter has been compromised by the negative paradigm in the same or similar manner that the real Michael Tellinger seems to have suffered (as stated in these texts) and of Credo Mutwa too. It is to be highlighted that many famous influential people such as David Icke, Jesse Ventura and Alex Jones have their "walk-in" reptilian counterpart. Both the original living and the "walk-in" giving lectures at the same time, with the original not aware they are being "charaded". It is up to you to use your eyes and see the little natural quirks are not in appearance in the "walk-in", such as David Icke's PITUIITE and Alex Jone's gravelly voice and Jesse Ventura's wrinkles. One thing reptilians do not "do" is wrinkles. In the forum DAVID ICKE~JESUS SOUL from the Computerized Template (which I stress because it seems that Allan Webber had the likes of CHANI helping him with his programming) in line 3 10 3 Monech de faim, lieu prins, captiuite, ICKE PITTANCE little PITUIITE (spitting habit old people often get). PECULIARISM: CHAFES ONE PACT ITEM AIM UPRISE PICA, FED.

- So David Icke does know about Treaty IX (aka Plan 9) with its new clause "trade in children" ... PICA being cannibalism here. The word PICA means eating something not normally in the diet but necessary for some reason such as a deficiency in trace elements, but in this case it is the addiction to adrenaline and young blood which is the "deficiency".
- One would wonder why go to all the trouble of describing a 'peculiarity' when everyone thinks they already know about one David Icke! 3 10 3 continues MELODIC (hertz frequency) SONIC SPERM-ATOCIDE. IMPLICATION: PUTREFIED EARTH, ANIMALS AND HUMANITI (and do go to The Cassiapaean Experiment regarding the Jesus Soul). When one realizes what it was that Immanuel Iscariot (a savior soul) was actually doing - warning the people about the political dangers of public control - one comes to realize that is exactly what David Icke has been doing!

The shape shifted copy-cat known as Jesus to people, was, as has just been explained , a "walk-in".

aprilholloway " a newly deciphered Egyptian text, dating back almost 1,200 years, which controversially described Jesus as having the ability to change shape. (We are now in 1017 [AD] so "almost" 1,200 years would take us back to the same decades of the event! A good pointer towards authenticity)

"The ancient text explains why Judas used a kiss, specifically, to betray Jesus. According to the canonical bible, the apostle Judas betrays Jesus in exchange for money by using a kiss to identify him leading to Jesus' arrest. This apocryphal tale explains that the reason Judas used a kiss, specifically, is because Jesus had the ability to change shape...

Then the Jews said to Judas: "How shall we arrest him [Jesus], for he does not have a single shape but his appearance changes. Sometimes he is ruddy, sometimes he is white, sometimes he is red, sometimes he is wheat coloured, sometimes he is pallid like ascetics, sometimes he is a youth, sometimes an old man ... This leads Judas to suggest using a kiss as a means to identify him."

This understanding of Judas' kiss goes way back. According to Van den Broek, the explanation of Judas' kiss is first found in Origen, a theologian who lived 185-254 AD. In his work, Contra Celsum, the ancient writer, stated that "to those who saw him [Jesus] he did not appear alike to all." The text is one of fifty-five Coptic manuscripts that were found in 1910 by villagers digging for fertilizer at the site of the destroyed Monastery of Archangel Michael of the Desert near Al Hamuli in Egypt."

Thinking logically this seems unlikely to me for the repair of astronomy to begin in late 2017 (but could be the year of the one answer is that this event happens in May of 2016. Being a long drawn out event, it could simply begin in May of 2016.

When in early 2009, I first collected the lines with this lady's name in it from Allan Webber's computerized template, I did go

- INQUISITIONS ENQUIRER the same of which the book 1984 was all about, by George Orwell an elite son himself

A comment is needed here in relation to the words everlasting fate which is a DIRECT HINT regarding the definition of the word FATE. In the "Lost Books of Enki" not only past readers, past decoders, but also Enki and his compatriots themselves have a debate regarding the defining of DESTINIES/DESTINY and FATES. Where they go wrong, is that FATE is not plural and never can be! We can only suffer one fate! And THAT is EXACTLY what quatrain line 3 79 1 is saying! Destinies are NOT everlasting, that is one thing everyone seems to agree on. That a destiny can be interrupted at any point for any reason (such as a flat tyre, or a truck pushing you off the road)... meaning DESTINIES are not set in stone – leaving your fate being the one thing "set in stone". Recall the WARP and the WEFT where one is always there unchanged (the weaver's vertical threads – all going the same direction and not deviating). Then the weaving (WEFT) of a pattern which can never be the same, on that "warp" (the template for the size and shape of what is being designed) becomes the DESTINATIONS. Therefore, destinies can be altered, but the end result (fate) cannot. The WARP lines all end up at the same place! So the word FATES as a plural is like many herd words such as school of FISH and herd of ELEPHANT or Alliance of ELOHIM ~ which can be taken to be plural and not really used with the 'S' added. Yet the word "destiny" actually really is "destinies" which we all experience all of the time. Different ones we live through. We never live thru/survive our fate. That is why we hear authors say "that was his fate".

It actually does mean "THE UNKNOWN FINAL DESTINATION" not of one's own doing.

If an author were to say "it was his fate to meet her" what does that imply? That it was fatal for him to meet her.

Should he have been destined to meet her – what does that imply? That they were to share a journey. One cannot do that if suffering a "fatal". The reasoning behind the decision of the Anu that it is Destiny that is fixed was relying on the orbits being a "destination" and "fixed"! So where was their I.Q. (common sense) when they made that decision? For a bunch of gods they sure did not think!. After all – it is their solar system which causes our orbits to become "unfixed"! Orbits actually go no where else but where they are – except when they become not fixed. Such as once having been 260 days, then 360, then in 705BC 365 days, and recently, in October 2013; 377 days which is currently 377.8 days and growing. There is one exception to this idea in this debate.

That is: we are in a vortex forward moving solar system, following our sun.

This is something the gods knew... were they placing their faith on this, the Big Picture, as a fixture when they debated the subject? One would think with all their different types of stargates that they would be able to circumvent things they might see in their future and it seems to me that giving certain human-bred elite the means to alter time-lines has also shot themselves in a foot or two. After all – they did provide REVELATION in the 'bible' for some reason or another! Remember, only the Elo'im see the true end.

What is not stated here is that the Enlil camp had sent the nuclear weapon in the direction of the Enki camp yet – somehow the lord of airways (Enlil-YHWH-chief pilot) had his own weapon (the wind) turned against him and his followers by a Higher Authority, the very one which is able to alter both destinies and fate, and his own camp suffered the consequences! They float at extremely high altitudes, and are usually observed using a telescope. While some sightings are only visible in full light spectrum, these zerooids can be seen with the naked eye. These fascinating alien creatures are poorly documented, although many researchers know and even acknowledge their existence.

On May 3, 2016, a video has surfaced revealing an impressive zerooid sighting floating above Guadalajara, Mexico. It strongly resembles a blue whale, but from another dimension, and it may also prove that Ruehl's theory regarding smaller zerooids being assimilated or eaten by the bigger ones is true. On a cosmic level, this could be a variation of the food chain defined by our earthly standards.

See the collation of the quatrain lines which guide one to the decoding a cipher in ALLAN WEBBER'S COMPUTERIZED TEMPLATE – page 2 which required first: that all quatrain lines are anagrammed (took Allan 8 years) then and only then, once they were collated into their single topic (the word ZERO, with the word JAIN) – did they tell the story of how to find the code. Even then, one had to be so familiar with the anagrammed lines (took me two full weeks to read them in hard copy) that one was forced to understand the number required related to the year of publication – as many of the proffered clues were!

o JABIRU-RAJ now we begin to see why we had to learn about the Benu-Crane-Grus-Heron-Ibis. When the Leo Rising Sphinx was constructed in the image of Ninghizzida/Thoth, (the Ibis headed) to commemorate the design of the Giza Plateau in the formation of Grus/Benu, this was representing those who came from the constellation Grus in league with ('spun by') one of the Ursa Anu factions. The missing fourth pyre-amid which was still in situ at 1770, is testament to the form of the bent winged bird whose tail goes from the Benu caves all the way under-ground north east to Bucegi and whose long head and beak go all the way south by south west to Oxyrhynchus (sharp beak in the fish) at Al Faiyoum [the Sea]. This is only seen from a height of 150 kilometres up. The RAJ connection refers to the British 'Empire' which has always been the primer of more modern worldly events – in order to gain wealth and power for a minority.

Bennu as a word is PENU which means "land in the south" – where Egypt once was! "The Sea" is an alkhemye term for the area of stars with all nautical names. Grus happens to have its beak in the tail of Pisces the fish.

Post scriptum

In a recent article written by Wes Penre (please go and read his forum, noting he advocates illuminati.com) he uses a logo sigil which tells us loud and clear one, or both, of two things:

- a) that he is totally unaware he is a pawn of the fallen angels and what they are
- b) by using an image of a Vril S.S. air-to-space craft, maybe he is not unaware.

Either way, his words need to be thoroughly inspected for false intent, with or without his conscious knowledge.

Just like the Lessins, who are believing that leopards can change their spots by saying “Marduk is reformed”.

Where Anton Parcs has told us Saam was EnKi we see that Marduk has fooled Penre by saying it is his faction that carries the acronym of SAAM. See how they hide behind names? It was also Marduk who called himself Ra. This is a title which needs to be earned. They do the very same with dangerous additions to our food, hiding the crap behind a front name. Such as ‘ascorbic acid’ which is not vitamin C, NatureSweet is saccharine, and M.S.G. ‘flavor’ has many.

The comparison was made in the video between the Jasher creatures still being alive today, one as a Ganesh-Dero and the other as Big-foot-Sasquatch (which also use their nasal cavities). Yet people who have experienced Sasquatch say they are gentle in nature, and we have seen in these texts (TEN FOOT YETI) are part of the Elo'im Alliance for nurturing the Living Library.

The coincidence of the colour of Ganesh and those creatures depicted in the videos is striking too.

Human Cattle Mutilation: The Grim And Chilling Claims - UFO Insight <https://www.ufoinsight.com> > Aliens

May 10, 2017 - VIDEO: JOHN LEAR – HUMAN MUTILATION FROM ALIENS UFO UK military source who worked on secret projects for NATO and the US military. ... NATO The Human Mutilation Cover Up FULL Film 2014 Richard D Hall .

Mantids originate from Argo ...

and have been copied by the Anakim-Draco, resulting in the giant four-armed negative type.

So you see how the modus operandi of the invading forces are so clever?

They use the very shape and appearance of those they are taking over to gain their victim’s trust.

Yet because they work in the negative they always seem to over-indulge in making the copy slightly moreso, thinking to gain the edge. After all, they are not the Creative Ones, but are the Destructive ones.

Their way of thinking is to always emphasize that which can destroy.

Whereas the Creative Ones empathise the natural and artistic means.

Herein likes your secret means of discernment. Not by what seems to be, as in the spoken dialect, but in the actual presence of activation. The Doing. The Act.

A couple of examples:

1. Michael Tellinger the Original – what was he once doing – and what is his copy doing now? Resting on laurels?
2. David Icke – his former topics have changed – he (the copy) never seems to disclose genres relating to how we can save ourselves anymore... other than waffle on about new age stuff. *Keep in mind that youtube is censored.
3. The exact same could be said of Donald Trump ~ and anyone else who might be able to guide us all properly.

49. côbien que par ambiguës opiniôs excédâts toutes raisons naturelles par songes Machometiqs, aussi aucune fois, Dieu le createur par les ministres de ses messagers de feu en flâme missiue vient à proposer aux sens exterieurs, mesmement à noz yeulx les causes de future prediction significatnces du cas futur qui se doit à celuy qui presaigne manifester.

How much that MAHOMETANS, by ambiguous opinions exceeding all natural reasons, by diverting dreams, that is why God the Creator, by the mediation of his messengers, by the flame of fire sent, never comes to propose to the exterior senses, not even to our eyes, the predictions which address the future and manifest themselves to the one who wants to witness them. (Preface to Cesar)

Et au clergé sera faicte totale desolation, & vsurperont les Martiaux ce que sera retourné de la cité du Soleil de Melite, & des isles Stechades, & sera ouuerte la grâde cheyne du port qui prend sa denomination au boeuf marin. Et sera faicte nouvelle incursion par les maritimes plages, vollant le sault Castulum deliurer de la premiere reprise Mahumetane. Et ne seront du tout leurs assaillemens vains, & au lieu que iadis fut l’habitation d’Abraham, sera assaillie par personnes qui auront en veneration les Iouialistes. Et icelle cité de Achem sera enuironnee & assaillie de toutes parts en tresgrande puissance de gens d’armes. Seront affoiblies leurs forces maritimes par les occidentaulx, & □ ce regne sera faicte grande desolation, & les plus grandes citez seront depeuplees, & ceux qui entreront dedans, seront comprins □ la vengeance de l’yre de Dieu. Et demeurera le sepulchre de tant grande veneration par l’espace de long temps soubz le serain □ l’vniuerselle vision des yeulx du ciel, du Soleil, & de la Lune, & sera conuertie le lieu sacré en ebergement de troupeau menu & grand, & adapté en substances prophanes.

And to the clergy there shall be total desolation, and the warlords will usurp what will be returned from the City of the Sun from Malta and from the Stechades Isles, and will be opened the great chain of the port that takes its name from the marine ox (Marseilles), and a new incursion will be made through the maritime shores, wanting the assault to deliver Sierra Morena from the first Muslim resumption. And their assaults will not at all be in vain, and the place which was once the abode of Abraham, will be assaulted by persons who will hold the Jovialist in veneration. And this city of Achem (Jerusalem) will be surrounded and assaulted on all sides by a powerful force of warriors. Their maritime forces will be weakened by the Westerners, and great desolation will fall upon this realm, and the greatest cities will be depopulated, and those who will enter within, will be included under the vengeance of the wrath of God. And will remain the sepulcher of such great veneration for the space of a long time under the open weather exposed to the universal vision of heaven, the Sun and of the Moon, and the holy place will be converted into a stable of herd small and large, and fitted with profane substances. (The Epistle to Henri).
